For the purpose of this Code Employees includes Directors, officers, consultants, contractors and persons in a like role with the Company, any subsidiary company and AXIS Consultants Pty Ltd.

Laws and Regulations

The Company is subject to local, State and Federal laws. All employees have a duty to act within those laws.

No one can be directed to carry out an illegal act, and no one can justify an illegal act by claiming to be acting under the order of a Manager, or to be simply complying with a policy.

Respect and comply with the laws and regulations in the country in which you are operating. In interpreting the laws and regulations always endeavour to adopt a course which reinforces our reputation and integrity.

Integrity

Employees are expected to conduct yourself with integrity, be fair and honest in your dealings and treat others with dignity.

Recognise and communicate any limitations or other constraints that would preclude responsible judgement or successful performance of an activity of the Company.

Confidentiality

Refrain from disclosing to any person any confidential and or sensitive information acquired in the course of your work except when authorised to do so, or unless legally obligated to do so, or where acceptable by management between employees, directors and consultants. Due to the continuing disclosure requirements under current regulations, this confidentiality will be strictly enforced by management.

Inform subordinates as appropriate regarding the confidentiality of information acquired in the course of their work.

Refrain from using confidential information acquired in the course of your work for illegal or unethical advantage, either personally or through third parties.

Competence

Maintain an appropriate level of professional competence by ongoing maintenance and development of your knowledge and skills.

Perform your professional duties in accordance with relevant laws, regulations and technical standards.

Prepare complete and clear reports and make recommendations after appropriate analyses of relevant and reliable information.

Objectivity

Communicate information fairly and objectively.

Disclose fully all relevant information that could reasonably be expected to influence an intended user's understanding of reports, comments and recommendations presented.

Behaviour

Behave in a professional and honest manner.

Treat people with respect, regardless of their individual differences.

Refrain from any behaviour that may be deemed to violate a person's rights and privacy under existing laws and regulations.

Refrain from placing yourself in situations which result in divided loyalties.

Use the Company's assets responsibly and in the best interests of the Company.

Conflict of Interest

A conflict of interest exists where loyalties are divided. It is expected that all employees will guard against any possible conflict of interest in employment.

If any employee thinks that he or she has a possible conflict of interest in relation to their employment, it should be discussed with the Secretary.

Company Assets - Funds, Property and Vehicles

Every employee who has control of Company funds is personally accountable for them. "Funds" can mean cash or valuables such as aeroplane tickets, lap top computers, mobile telephones, etc.

All employees share the responsibility for looking after Company property, especially if it is under our control. Company property must not be removed without authorisation or used for personal benefit or any other improper purpose.

Anyone using a Company vehicle should ensure that it is not used in a way that will reflect badly on the Company. Vehicles must not be used for unauthorised purposes.

Drugs and Alcohol

Illegal drugs are not acceptable or permitted in the workplace. Where prescription drugs which are likely to affect performance or safety are involved, you should notify your manager to ensure that safety performance is properly managed.

Employees should not allow alcohol to affect their performance at work.

Specific rules are applicable to drugs and alcohol on an exploration or mine site and if you are on such a site, you should familiarise yourself with these rules.

Gifts, Loans, Hospitality

No one should ask for or accept any gift, loan, unusual or expensive hospitality or other benefit of significant value. In particular, employees must not seek or accept a significant gift that could cause pressure on our judgement, or could seem to be a conflict of interest, or could damage relationships with others.

Hospitality in the form of entertainment in the interests of normal business practice is normally acceptable. However, it is important not to give any impression that there may be a connection between the hospitality and business opportunities.

If an employee is sent a significant gift, that person should report it to the Secretary and, if possible, return it with a polite note. However, it is sometimes awkward to refuse a gift. If refusal of an offer might damage relationships, it may be appropriate to accept the gift on behalf of the Company. If in doubt about gifts, hospitality or concessions offered, ask the Secretary.

A gift is defined as an item or service of significant value. Unsolicited promotional materials of little or nominal value such as pens, pencils key rings, diaries, etc are not gifts for the purpose of this definition.

Improper Influence

No pressure is to be put on employees to influence their personal preferences in private or political matters. Further, no approval or disapproval should be shown by anyone in his or her Company role, of an employee's private political preferences or activities.

Obligations on Leaving the Company

On leaving the Company no matter what the circumstances, each employee must hand over to their Manager any Company assets and items containing business information. Even after leaving the Company, all employees have a continuing obligation to maintain the confidentiality of such information, which includes intellectual property that may have been created whilst working with the Company.

Non-Discrimination

Management is committed to equal opportunity for all of its employees. Employees must not discriminate against a person on the basis of race, colour, religion, gender, and age. Marital status, sexual preference, disability or other factors unrelated to legitimate business interests. Harassment of any person on any basis will not be tolerated. Sexual advances or comments, racial or religious “jokes” or slurs, or any other conduct in the workplace that is intimidating or offensive is unacceptable behaviour and will not be condoned.

Recruitment, promotions and other conditions of employment or career development will be based on individual merit. Unethical means of achieving performance or promotion will not be condoned or rewarded.

Employees should ensure that outside activity does not involve the use of the Company’s property, information, money, facilities, time or the services of fellow employees

Employees should avoid outside activity likely to affect either our work or someone else’s or which could discredit either the Company, or ourselves or which could conflict with the Company’s interests.

The Company takes its role in the community in which we operate, and in the general community, seriously. Employees can improve their own standing and the standing of the Company by working in the community. If it is possible, the Company will assist and support you if you have a role in the public or community.

When acting on the Company's behalf, your actions should not be seen, or conduct should not be such that it can be interpreted to be promoting a political party.
